Dual Degree: MBA/MArch

Offered in conjunction with Washington University's Olin Business School, this dual degree program prepares architects and urban designers to be both thoughtful designers and effective managers and developers. The Master of Architecture (MArch) degree may be combined with a Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree. Career opportunities that stem from this dual degree arrangement are in the architecture, business, and development professions; community development and planning; housing development; and public policy. Students may start their initial year in either school.

Students entering the MArch 2 program who have also been admitted to the MBA program will need three to four years of graduate work to complete the MArch/MBA dual degree program. The requirements and duration of study for students admitted to other MArch programs are determined on a case-by-case basis.
