Latin

The Department of Classics offers course work in the language, history, literature, archaeology and culture of ancient Rome. At the heart of these courses are classes in the Latin language. Students of beginning Latin master the grammar in two semesters and go on immediately, in the third semester, to read authors such as Cicero and Vergil. Students who have studied Latin in high school begin with a placement exam, and many can begin their studies in more advanced courses. Students have the opportunity to study numerous Latin authors, including the great poets Vergil and Ovid, the historians Livy and Tacitus, and the novelists Apuleius and Petronius. More advanced undergraduates often work alongside graduate students in our vigorous graduate program, and they also have the opportunity to do their own research or to assist in faculty members’ research projects. It is a remarkable and dynamic environment, one that students find both rewarding and stimulating. Resources on campus supporting the study of Latin include the Wulfing Coin Collection, one of the largest collections of ancient coins owned by an American university.

L10 Latin 4161 Seneca: Philosopher and Friend
Seneca the Younger was a philosopher, politician, playwright and propagandist; he rose from the province of Spain to become tutor and adviser to Nero, only to fall from favor and commit suicide at the emperor's command. We will study Seneca's life and works, focusing on the Epistulae Morales and select philosophical treatises. We will pay special attention to issues of language and style, cultural and historical context, and ideological and philosophical content. Prerequisites: Latin 3171 and Latin 3181 (or equivalent) and sophomore standing or above. Credit 3 units. A&S: TH LA CD A&S IQ: HUM LCD LS Arch: HUM Art: HUM BU: HUM EN: H

L10 Latin 419 Julius Caesar and His Image

L10 Latin 421 Roman Comedy

L10 Latin 432 Horace on Poetry
This course examines Roman poetry that illuminates ancient and still-influential ideas about the functions of literature. Horace’s monumental “Ars Poetica” and his other literary-critical works will be the major texts. These works convey the complexity of contemporary debates about literature’s role in society and history and about the merits of various genres (epic, tragedy, comedy, satire, epigram). Readings in secondary sources will help to fill out the picture of Horace’s career and of the climate of literary production in early Imperial Rome. Credit 3 units. A&S: TH A&S IQ: HUM

L10 Latin 433 Ovid

L10 Latin 441 Roman Satire
This course focuses on the genre of hexameter satire represented by the Roman poets Lucilius, Horace, Persius, and Juvenal (second century BCE through second century CE). The Roman professor Quintilian called satire "entirely Roman" (tota nostra), and our readings will allow us to explore the meaning of this claim for satire's authors and readers. We will read a large sampling of satiric verse in the original Latin, practice reading the dactylic hexameter, and observe and discuss differences between the poets' styles and themes. We'll also read and discuss scholarship on the genre's formal characteristics and influences, its origins in Republican literary culture, and its development in the Imperial period. Credit 3 units. L10 Latin 496 Tacitus
Tacitus, the great historian and orator of the late first and early second centuries CE, is one of our best sources for the early history of the Roman Empire. With his concise style and scathing political insight, Tacitus' writings influenced later authors from Ammianus Marcellinus to Macchiavelli. We will read selections from Tacitus' historical works, paying particular attention to: prose style; genre, rhetoric and historiography; and Tacitus' critique of the Principate. Prerequisites: Latin 3171 and Latin 3181 (or equivalent) and sophomore standing or above. Credit 3 units. A&S: TH A&S IQ: HUM, LCD, LS Arch: HUM Art: HUM

L10 Latin 4962 Juvenal and Martial
This course examines satiric representations of life in the city of Rome in the Epigrams of Martial and Satires of Juvenal. The two poets, who were near-contemporaries and acquaintances, have had a massive impact on modern perceptions of imperial Rome in the ages of Domitian, Nerva, Trajan, and Hadrian (80s-120s CE). The Rome they represent is both a real place and a poetic world full of dramas and fictions. From our readings from Martial, Juvenal, and sources on their work and lives, we will gain an understanding of their literary agendas and of the realities of Roman life that their poems represent and distort. Topics will include the poetic career, the public spaces of Rome, amicitia and its rituals, private life, sexual behavior, and family affairs. Credit 3 units. A&S: TH A&S IQ: HUM, LCD, LS EN: H

L10 Latin 4963 Martial
Martial, the prolific first-century Latin poet, left behind 15 books of poetry. Martial's epigrams can be witty, sincere, caustic, and often quite sexually explicit. In this course, we will read a selection of Martial's epigrams in Latin, and we will discuss various themes related to Martial's work, such as gender and sexuality, ancient conceptions of authorship and publishing, flattery, invective, and the many personae Martial adopts. We will also pay close attention to Martial's language and style, and we will discuss where Martial fits into the wider social and historical context. Credit 3 units. A&S IQ: HUM, LCD EN: H
