The Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures (EALC) offers a major and a minor in Korean language and culture. As a major in Korean, a student can expect to gain some proficiency in the language and to acquire a foundation in Korean literature, history and culture from earliest times to the present. All students majoring in Korean must complete first- and second-level Korean or its equivalent. They also must complete a prerequisite 200-level civilization course, two literature/culture courses, and additional advanced-level courses (300- or 400-level). In addition, all prime majors must complete the required EALC capstone experience.

The department strongly encourages the overseas study of Korean language and culture. All majors and minors are expected to maintain at least a B- average in all departmental courses.

Language Placement: Placement tests are required for all students entering our language programs, with the exception of those students who have had no previous knowledge of the language and are planning to enroll in the first semester of the first year of instruction. Students who test into second-year Korean and satisfactorily complete (with a grade of B- or better) at least one semester of language study may petition for 3 units of retroactive credit; students who test into third year or above and satisfactorily complete (with a grade of B- or better) at least one semester of language study may petition for 6 units of retroactive credit. Credit is limited to 3 units for those testing into the second year and 6 units for those testing into the third year or above. Please note that students with native language proficiency as determined by the individual language section as well as students who enroll in courses below their placement level are ineligible for retroactive credit units. Students who misrepresent their language proficiency so as to gain entrance to a course at the elementary or intermediate level will be dropped from that course.

Majors
The Major in Korean Language and Culture

Units required: Eight courses for a minimum of 24 upper-level (300 level or above) units

Prerequisites:
1. First- and second-level Modern Korean or the equivalent
2. Korean 223C Korean Civilization

Requirements:
Eight courses for a minimum of 24 advanced (300 level or above) units, including the following:
1. Korean 352 Literature of Modern and Contemporary Korea
2. Korean 355 Topics in Korean Literature and Culture
3. 400-level capstone course (prime majors)
   - Korean prime majors may satisfy their capstone requirement in one of two ways, both of which require a presentation at the EALC Senior Symposium in the spring.
     a) Successful completion of a senior honors thesis. This option, which also entitles the student to Latin Honors, requires a minimum grade-point average of 3.65. The thesis is researched and written over two semesters for a total of 6 units of credit, which are in addition to the 24 upper-level units required for the major.
     b) Successful completion of an approved 400-level seminar course, to be taken in the senior year. (This course may be included among the 24 advanced units required for the major.)

Additional Information
1. With adviser approval, students may include one course in a related area offered outside the department among the 24 advanced units. (For example, a student with focus on Korea/Korean may take one course in Film and Media Studies or Art History that focuses on Korea.) With adviser approval, students may count one course from another area within the department among the 24 advanced units. (For example, a student with focus on Korea/Korean may take one course in either Chinese or Japanese.)
2. Students must earn at least a B- in language courses in order to continue to the next level. They must also maintain at least a B- average in all required courses for the major. Students who do not meet this requirement may either repeat the course(s) in question or earn at least a B- in an approved equivalent course or courses (either during the summer or in a study abroad program).
3. Courses for the major may not be taken credit/no credit.
4. Core courses (i.e., Korean 223C, 352, and 355) should be taken in residence.

5. Up to 6 units of credit may be applied toward the major from one semester abroad, and up to 12 units of credit may be applied from two semesters abroad. Note that EALC no longer distinguishes study abroad credits earned in advanced language courses from those credits earned in other content (non-language) courses.

6. No more than 3 units of independent study may be counted toward the required upper-level 24 units.

7. EALC awards Departmental Honors to majors as an acknowledgment of exemplary work in the major.

Courses

This undergraduate course surveys the major writers and works of 20th-century Korean literature. During the 20th century, Korea went through a radical process of modernization. From its colonization by Japan to its suffering of a civil war within the cold war order to its growth into a cultural and economic powerhouse, Korea’s historical experience is at once unique and typical of that of a third-world nation. By immersing ourselves in the most distinctive literary voices from Korea, we examine how the Korean experience of modernization was filtered through its cultural production. In class discussions, we pay special attention to the writers’ construction of the self and the nation. How do social categories such as ethnicity, class, gender, and race figure in the varying images of the self? How do these images relate to the literary vision of the nation? Along the way, we observe the prominent themes, ideas, and concerns of Korean literature. This class combines discussion with lecture, with students strongly encouraged to participate. All literary texts are in English translation and no previous knowledge of Korean is required.

In this course we will explore the role of women in the religious traditions of China, Japan and Korea, with a focus on Buddhism, Daoism, Shamanism, Shinto and the so-called “New Religions.” We will begin by considering the images of women (whether mythical or historical) in traditional religious scriptures and historical or literary texts. We will then focus on what we know of the actual experience and practice of various types of religious women — nuns and abbesses, shamans and mediums, hermits and recluses, and ordinary laywomen — both historically and in more recent times. Class materials will include literary and religious texts, historical and ethnological studies, biographies and memoirs, and occasional videos and films. Prerequisites: This class will be conducted as a seminar, with minimal lectures, substantial reading and writing, and lots of class discussion. For this reason, students who are not either upper-level undergraduates or graduate students, or who have little or no background in East Asian religion or culture, will need to obtain the instructor’s permission before enrolling.
